

According to Jeniffer's strategy, boys in primary schools should be taught that to be a "Man you don't have to be a bully or use force to get what you want or be disrespectful to women."

"All people are equal and boys must respect girls because they are their sisters, mothers, a girlfriends," she adds. Jeniffer strongly feels that girls should be taught self-defense and what to do in case of rape.

"The Youth Against Rape Club in schools will be very effective because it will give young people skills to prevent or avoid rape and also to assist victims deal with it," she adds.

Together with her family, Jeniffer envisions a society where women, men, boys and girls live harmoniously together, each respecting and nurturing one another's freedom and well-being.
